What is the difference between a job and a career?

Career

An occupation or profession, requiring special training, followed as one’s lifework

Job

The work someone does to make a living

I don’t know what I want to do!??
Different careers require different levels of post-secondary education.

For example, if you want to become a teacher you need a four year degree and a teaching certificate. But, if you want to become an mechanic, you need a technical license.

To become a fireman or police officer, you have to go to either fire school or police academy.

If you want to become a medical doctor, this will take a four year degree, then several additional years in medical school.

Keeping your end goal in mind will set you up to make the right choices along the way! Exploring O-net Online can help you compare careers of interest to what your life goals are! 😊
